Nokonoshima Observatory

Nokonoshima, a beautiful island floating in the middle of Hakata Bay.

This small island with its 12km coastline and abundant nature is blessed with the romance of history. That heritage includes monuments to the Manyoshu literature of the Nara Period (7th Century), and the ruins of a deer hunting wall constructed during the feudal reign of the Kuroda clan. The well-known writer Dan Kazuo claimed Noko as his spiritual homeland by spending his last years here. And the obscure song of the famous singer Inoue Yosui, 'Unrequited love of Nokonoshima', captures the bitterness of a young broken heart. Please enjoy a relaxed time here on the Island that has never known the urban haste of modern life.

Dan Kazuo Monument

This monument acknowledges the nationally respected author Dan Kazuo who spent the final years of his life here on Noko. The inscription is a Dan Kazuo quotation from the last poem he composed on his death bed : The flute of the winter wind rattles bamboo, night after night, onwards to the flowers.

During the April-September season, the pontoon moored offshore, with its marine trampoline, sees plenty of action. Kids love the
